- the restricted and controlled environment of the zoo
- the challenges and emotional toll of captivity and mental peace in the wild

Questions

Q 3. Are zoos necessary for the protection or conservation of some species of animals? Are they useful for educating the public? Are there alternatives to zoos?

Ans. Zoos are essential for the protection or conservation of some endangered species of animals, such as white tigers. Various species are on the verge of extinction, thus they need to be protected. For this, zoos are the most suitable.

Zoos are also useful for educating the public about various animals, their habitats, kind of food they eat, seasons of hibernation, reproduction, etc. One need not go to the forests to study about them.

Zoos can be replaced by wildlife sanctuaries where the animals get their natural habitat and environment to live and flourish. There are no restrictions, no walls and no boundaries for the animals.
